CANADA'S SPACE ADVISORY BOARD

Abstract

In October 2016, the Government of Canada initiated plans to renew its Space Advisory Board, bringing together a diverse group of experienced space professionals from industry, the academic and research communities, and the not-for-profit sector to inform a new national space strategy. Beginning in early 2017, the Space Advisory Board conducted extensive consultations with stakeholders in the Canadian space community to define key elements of a space strategy. This process resulted in a set of six recommendations, which were incorporated into the Government of Canada's strategy process. This presentation will provide an overview of this public engagement process, the resulting recommendations, and the current state of the Canadian space strategy.
