ENABLERS AND BARRIERS FOR ENTREPRENEURSHIP IN DIFFERENT REGIONS

Abstract

Entrepreneurship is influenced by a variety of factors, including cultural, economic, and regulatory environments. This paper examines the enablers and barriers for entrepreneurship in different regions, highlighting the unique challenges faced by entrepreneurs worldwide. The study explores how cultural norms, economic conditions, and government policies impact entrepreneurial activity. It analyzes the role of infrastructure, access to funding, and support networks in fostering or hindering entrepreneurship. By comparing and contrasting the experiences of entrepreneurs in different regions, this research aims to identify common patterns as well as unique characteristics of entrepreneurial ecosystems. The findings will contribute to a better understanding of the factors that promote or impede entrepreneurial growth, informing policy decisions and entrepreneurial strategies worldwide.
